*Not every course listed in the catalog is offered every year. Course offerings and schedule vary from year to year.
Course Regulations

Course Schedule: The final course arrangement and new course syllabi will be available to view a week prior to the resumption of courses.

Course Selection: Exchange students will register for courses online during the orientation period or prior to arrival in the same manner that degree students do. Exchange students will have all elective courses and most required courses available to them.

Course Restrictions: Students must satisfy any course pre-requisites. Each course has a size cap; finance and economics electives: 60, management electives: 35. PHBS will be unable to assist students in registering for courses that have already reached their size cap.

Add/Drop Regulations: Week 1: may freely add and drop courses. Week 2: may only drop with professor permission. Week 3-9: Drop or withdrawal not permitted. Students that stop attending a course or do not properly withdraw by the 2nd week will be given a ‘0’ for the course grade.

Course Load: Minimum: 2 courses per module (including language study). Maximum: 7 courses for the semester (including language study).

Grading and Credit System: PHBS grades are awarded as a letter grade, corresponding to a GPA. The minimum passing grade is a D. The chart to the right shows the letter grade and equivalent GPA. PHBS courses are worth 3 credits, consisting of 36 in class lecture hours plus an additional 9 faculty office hours or TA session hours. PHBS students’ maximum course load for one semester is 18 credits, 6 courses.

Chinese Language: Peking University awards 2 credits per semester of language study. Beginning Chinese is available in both fall and spring semesters. Advanced Beginner Chinese is offered in the spring only.

Visas

PHBS will send an admission letter and a JW202 directly to the home university coordinator. These documents should be used to apply for an X2 visa (single semester) or an X1 visa (full year). The X2 visa is a single entry visa. Students wanting multiple entries can attempt to apply for a resident permit upon arrival (not guaranteed). Detailed information on visas and paperwork is provided to students after nomination and acceptance.

Health Insurance Coverage

All exchange students are required to purchase Ping An Insurance for 400 RMB/semester. This provides coverage at Chinese-speaking wards of public Chinese hospitals. Additional coverage is recommended for those wanting private hospitals or English-speaking, international wards.

Housing

On-campus housing is available to exchange students. An application will be sent to students after acceptance. Housing cannot be guaranteed, but PKU Shenzhen will do their best to provide housing. In some cases students may be required to share a double room if single rooms are no longer available.

Single room: 6,000 RMB/semester **
Double room: 3,000 RMB/semester **
Utilities: est. 200 RMB/month

Fees are based on 2017-2018 costs, fees for future terms are subject to change
Success After Graduation

PHBS international alumni have made great strides in a variety of careers worldwide, employing their knowledge and skills in a wide range of industries. Over 85% of PHBS international alumni have secured full-time employment within six months of graduation.

About PHBS

For more than 100 years, Peking University has been one of the elite universities of China, recognized as one of the leading universities in the world. Established in 1898, Peking University HSBC Business School is a center of international excellence in business education.

Testimonials

The primary reason that I have chosen Master of Economics in PHBS was because of the diversity of the courses, which includes historical, political and sociological modules alongside pure theory and statistics. If you’re searching for academic and extra-curricular excellence in the most energetic city in China, look no further than PHBS.

— Jaewuan Lim, South Korea, Master of Economics

PHBS has offered me unlimited opportunities for my dreams to thrive in one of China’s most innovative cities. The Master of Finance program provides challenging courses which have rigorously deepened my understanding of finance from theory to practice. This has made me feel confident about a career in finance and my experience at PHBS has transformed me into a master of my own destiny.

— Taurai Muvunza, Zimbabwe, Master of Finance

I applied for the Master of Management because of the outstanding teaching, research, and international environment. The Master of Management is a course that focuses on a range of elective courses to specialise within the field of management. The faculty members are inspiring in character and expertise, the international student body helped me to build a network that spans the globe and developed my understanding of Chinese culture through the interaction with local students. Lastly, the various elective courses have given me the chance to broaden my mind rather than following a predetermined list of business courses. I am now very interested in the course of corporate governance.

— Fabian Tyroller, Germany, Master of Management

PHBS programs provide students with a deep subject learning in finance, management and economics, with courses including both theoretical and practical learning. The programs also provide students with a chance to work in a global environment. There are also many opportunities for students to develop important professional skills. All these features also provide students with a deeper understanding of business and commerce in China, making them more competitive in the international market.

These unique characteristics, which our faculty and graduate alumni help, can help students develop the capabilities and connections they need to succeed in global business.
Success After Graduation
PHBS international alumni have made great strides in a range of industries around the world. They have gone on to pursue successful careers in international business and finance, and now represent a global network of alumni who share their experiences and support one another. The strong connections and resources that alumni build during their time at PHBS continue to be a valuable asset in their careers.

Peking University HSBC Business School
International Student Admissions

PHBS international alumni have made great strides in their respective careers in 33 countries across the globe, and have had success in finding jobs after graduation. International alumni have gone on to work in a wide variety of fields, being employed under multinational companies or starting their own businesses. With an extensive alumni network across the globe, PHBS works to provide the best placement and support possible for all students, preparing them on the road to a better career and a brighter future.

About PHBS
For more than 100 years, Peking University has been one of China’s elite institutions of learning. Organised as one of the eight universities in China which were formally founded during the early 1900s, Peking University has been ranked amongst the top 30 universities globally by the QS World University Rankings.

Established in 2004, Peking University HSBC Business School (PHBS) has rapidly grown in reputation and is one of the most international excellence in business education. PHBS has more than 60 internationally educated faculty members and collaborated with over 3000 business leaders around the world. In PHBS’ commitment to research, Nobel Prize laureate, Professor Thomas J. Sargent, joined PHBS to conduct research as the head of the “Sargent Institute of Quantitative Economics and Finance.” As well, renowned Chinese economist, Professor Fan He joined the “Research Institute of Marine Silk Road” on China’s newest initiative, “One Belt One Road.”

PHBS is internationally renowned for its dual focus on in-depth subject learning in business, management and economics, with courses including both theoretical and practical learning. The programs also cater to students from all the corners of the global village. They are designed to be of great importance in the field of global business. You will develop strong professional knowledge and skills that will also develop a deeper understanding of culture and business in China, making you more competitive in the international arena. PHBS is the ideal choice for you.

These unique characteristics, with our culture for excellence and customised programmes, will help students develop the capabilities and connections they need to succeed in global business.
PHBS offers two-year full-time programs, all culminating with a final thesis and instructed exclusively in English. International students learn alongside Chinese peers in an environment of cross-cultural dialogue. These programs aim to foster and empower students, allowing them to improve not only their subject-related skills and knowledge, but also their critical thinking and analytical ability to challenge business problems and economic issues.

Currently there are 3 master’s degrees open to international applicants: Finance, Management and Economics. With internationalization as its goal, PHBS has taken a bold step by opening a new campus in Boar’s Hill, England, three miles south of Oxford City. Courses at the UK campus will be taught by leading international scholars. Students admitted to the cross-border programs spend the first year of their master’s degrees in Finance or Management at the PHBS UK Campus, and their second year at the PHBS Shenzhen Campus.

These two-year programs focus on learning both subject-related knowledge/skills and issues related to China and the UK, and will be a great opportunity for students to not only have specialist training and cross-cultural exposure, but also a multi-country experience and in-depth cross-cultural exposure.

Peking University HSBC Business School's main campus is located in the thriving entrepreneurial, technological, and dynamic city of Shenzhen, and immediately adjacent to the international financial hub of Hong Kong. As China’s first Special Economic Zone, Shenzhen is home to a large amount of private enterprise and is an important manufacturing and high-tech hub, and is host to the Shenzhen Stock Market. Few other regions in China offer a more suitable setting for an institution destined to become this country’s foremost graduate business school.

Currently there are 3 master's degrees open to international applicants: Finance, Management and Economics.

With internationalization as its goal, PHBS has taken a bold step by opening a new campus in Boar’s Hill, England, three miles south of Oxford City. Courses at the UK campus will be taught by leading international scholars. Students admitted to the cross-border programs spend the first year of their master's degrees in Oxford or management at the PHBS UK Campus, and then second year at the PHBS Shenzhen Campus.

These two-year programs focus on both subject-related knowledge/skills and issues related to China and the UK, and will be a great opportunity for students to, not only have specialist training and cross-disciplinary coursework, but also a multi-country experience and in-depth cross-cultural exposure.

Ph.D. programs are also available in Accounting, Economics, Finance, Management, and Marketing.

Peking University HSBC Business School's main campus is located in the thriving entrepreneurial, technological, and dynamic city of Shenzhen, and immediately adjacent to the international financial hub of Hong Kong. An elite city of Special Economic Zone, Shenzhen, is home to a large amount of private enterprise and is an important manufacturing and high-tech hub, and is host to the Shenzhen Stock Market. Few other regions in China offer a more suitable setting for an institution destined to become the country's foremost graduate business school.

APPLICATION REQUIREMENTS

To apply, students must first submit a completed application form, including an updated resume, application letter, two referees, and any other relevant documents. The application process typically takes about 2-4 weeks. Students are notified of the decision via email. The decision is based on a comprehensive evaluation of the applicant's academic performance, work experience, and personal statement. Admission is granted on a competitive basis, and the number of students admitted each year is limited. Students accepted into the program are required to pay the tuition fees in full before the start of the academic year. The tuition fees vary depending on the program and can be paid in installments if necessary.
Testimonials

The primary reason that I have chosen Master of Economics in PHBS was because of the diversity of the courses, which includes historical, political and sociological modules alongside pure theory and statistics. If you're searching for academic and extra-curricular excellence in the most energetic city in China, look no further than PHBS.

— Jaewuan Lim, South Korea, Master of Economics

PHBS has offered me unlimited opportunities for my dreams to thrive in one of China's most innovative cities. The Master of Finance program provides challenging courses which have rigorously deepened my understanding of finance from theory to practice. This has made me feel confident about a career in finance and my experience at PHBS has transformed me into a master of my own destiny.

— Taurai Muvunza, Zimbabwe, Master of Finance

I applied for the Master of Management because of the outstanding teaching, strong international reputation, the range of elective courses to specialise within the field of management and the opportunity to travel. Faculty members are inspiring in character and expertise, the international student body helped me to develop a network that spans the globe and I developed an understanding of Chinese culture through the interaction with local students. Lastly, the various elective courses have given me the chance to pursue my interests rather than following a prescribed list of business courses.

— Fabian Tyroller, Germany, Master of Management

For more than 100 years, Peking University has been an elite institution of learning, recognisedinternationally as one of the leading universities in the world, and ranked 29th in the world by Times Higher Education (THE) in 2017.

Established in 2004, Peking University HSBC Business School (PHBS) has rapidly grown in reputation and as a center of international excellence in business education. PHBS has more than 60 internationally educated faculty members with PhDs from leading universities around the world. Professor Thomas Sargent, a Nobel Prize winner, joined PHBS to conduct research as the head of the “Sargent Institute of Quantitative Economics and Finance.” As well, renowned Chinese economist, Professor Fan He, joined PHBS as the head of the “Research Institute of Marine Silk Road,” with research focusing on China’s central initiatives. “One Belt One Road,” is adopted in China, PHBS aims to provide faculty and students with the opportunity to be leaders in this innovative field.

PHBS programs focus on in-depth subject learning in finance, management and economics, with courses including both theoretical and practical learning. The programs also overlap with Chinese law and various courses in global business. Students who graduate have an important professional knowledge base but also develop a deeper understanding of business and economics in China, making them more competitive in the emerging and expanding international and entrepreneurship markets.

These unique characteristics, which few other business schools possess, can help students develop the capabilities and connections they need to succeed in global business.

PHBS international alumni have made great strides in their respective careers in 33 countries across the globe, and have had success in finding jobs after graduation. International alumni have gone on to work in a wide variety of fields, being employed under multinational companies or starting their own businesses. With an extensive alumni network across the globe, PHBS works to provide the best placement and support possible for all students, preparing them on the road to a better career and a brighter future.
