SELECTING COURSES

Use the online searching tool at:

www.upv.es/entidades/OPII/infoweb/pi/info/818871normali.html

- Students are allowed to take courses from different Schools, with a maximum of 12 ECTS outside their hosting school.
- UPV Schools recommend and in some cases require a minimum course load of 20 ECTS per semester.
- Some Schools may have some prerequisites concerning course selection. Additionally, some courses may also have pre-requisites which must be considered before making a selection. Insufficient background may result into course denial.
- Hosting schools can only guarantee for acceptance in their own courses. Enrolment in courses outside the hosting schools will depend on the spaces available after registering their own students.
- It is important to make sure that the selected courses are taught in the semester the student is to come (A or B)
- When selecting courses students should bear in mind that EPSA and EPSG are located in the cities of Alcoy and Gandia respectively (around 80km from Valencia)
- Class availability cannot be confirmed until enrolment once students have arrived in UPV.

Students will have 7 days after the beginning of the semester to make changes in their course selection.

COURSES IN ENGLISH:

UPV offers more than 300 courses in English. Aeronautics, Business, Computer Engineering and Building Engineering bachelor programs are fully taught in English as well as the Architecture, Telecommunication and Civil Engineering master programs.

ORIENTATION

Each UPV School organizes information sessions during the first week of classes to explain about the registration process and life at the School. Students will be provided with the calendar of sessions in their first visit to the School's international office.

A General orientation meeting is organized by the UPV central international office in early September and early February. This orientation is compulsory and students will receive an e-mail with all the information upon arrival.

For further details about living in Valencia, students can see the information at our Exchange student Guide:

STUDENT ASSOCIATIONS

UPV works very closely with Erasmus Student Network (www.esnvalenciaupv.es/) an association of international students which make their best to provide exchange students with a variety of exciting activities.

VALENCIA

UPV is located in the city of Valencia, an industrial and touristic city in the East coast of Spain. Valencia is one of the most important cities of Spain and a top destination for Erasmus students in Europe.

The city of Valencia has an international airport connecting with most European capitals as well as with Madrid and Barcelona. The high speed train AVE also connects Valencia with Madrid and Sevilla.
